

Possessions

When Katherine Frasers husband Craig mysteriously disappears, she is beset by problems: two children to raise, frightening expenses, and no job. Judith Michael adds to this classic dilemma the glamour and intrigue of Craigs wealthy, prestigious, feuding San Francisco family for a fascinating and compassionate story of one womans self-discovery. Determined to make it on her own, Katherine fashions a new life for herself as a jewelry designer and finds happiness with a new love. This absorbing novel set in exotic locales is filled with insight and drama.
