

Pumpkin Hill

Six people's lives are changed forever by the startling events that occur at a rural crossroads named Pumpkin Hill. Harry Backman is a mentally ill young man whose voices draw him to what he hopes will be an apocalyptic moment on Pumpkin Hill. Leonard Grace is an elderly man in a loveless marriage on his evening walk. Laura Hall is a writer and the wife of a Presbyterian minister whose automobile accident that night on Pumpkin Hill forms the heart of the story. Warren, Laura's husband, is a young minister searching for the truth while struggling with whether his wife will survive. Eloise, Harry's long-suffering mother, fears the worst about her son's involvement. Bertha, Leonard's crusty wife, struggles with what is real as she comes to grips with years of loss and now her husband's fate. Pumpkin Hill is a story about going forward even when there is no clear path to follow; it is about tenacious hope in the face of desperate truth; and ultimately it is about the everlasting power of human connection.
